

Congressman Jesse Jackson Jr. issued the following statement in response to the latest personnel moves at Chicago City Hall brought about by the ongoing widespread corruption investigations.

"It strikes me that these actions are too little, too late," Jackson said.

"The Inspector General has been pressured to resign, but he's been AWOL for 18 years. The newspapers have done a better job from the outside of uncovering wrongdoing than the Inspector General has done from within with full governmental investigative powers.

"I also wonder why the Cook County State's Attorney has been unable to find any of this wrongdoing at City Hall or uncover this unfolding corruption. Could it be because they all have proximity to the Mayor?"
